

Brambles and Blossoms

With negative thoughts, brambles branched from her head
—spiky hair that made her look like a porcupine.

With positive thoughts, blossoms bloomed from her head
—soft petals of gorgeous colors and lovely fragrance

In this way, her family knew the essence of what she was thinking.

In her home, negative thoughts had their place. Brambles were used to build and repair barbed fences, make needles and hooks, and create potions that drew negative energies away from a person. These negative energies could then be bottled and burned in purifying fires.

In her home, positive thoughts led to beautiful bouquets, petal strewn wedding paths, gorgeous perfumes, and potions to attract the good to one's life.

Both negative and positive were welcomed and harvested for useful purposes. Both created their own seeds and scents. These were dispersed widely as she loved to go up to the mountaintops and let the wind blow through her bramble and blossom hair.

